

Significant Legal Decisions

Direct Tax Laws

1. Would refund of excise duty and grant of interest subsidy under the incentive scheme formulated by Central Government for public interest, namely, to accelerate industrial development, generate employment and create opportunities for self-employment in state of Jammu and Kashmir be treated as a revenue receipt or a capital receipt?

Shree Balaji Alloys v. CIT (2011) 333 ITR 335 (J&K)

In the present case, the Tribunal contended that excise duty refund and grant of interest subsidy received by the assessee in pursuance of the New Industrial Policy introduced in Jammu and Kashmir were revenue receipt and not capital receipt on the grounds that:-

- (i) the aforesaid incentives were not given to establish industrial units because the industry was already established.
- (ii) the incentives were available only on commencement of commercial production.
- (iii) the incentives were recurring in nature.
- (iv) the incentives were not given for acquisition of capital assets.
- (v) the incentives were given for easy market accessibility and to run the business more profitably.

The High Court observed that the fact that incentives would become available to industrial units entitled thereto from the date of commencement of commercial production and the fact that these were not granted for creation of new assets were not the sole criteria for determining the nature of subsidy. The fact that such incentives were provided to achieve a public purpose should also be considered to determine the nature of subsidy and hence, such subsidy could not be construed as a production or operational incentive for the benefit of the assessee. Hence, the aforesaid incentives are capital receipts not liable to taxation.

2. Can an assessee engaged in letting out of rooms in a lodging house also treat the income from renting of a building to bank on long term lease as business income?

Joseph George and Co. v. ITO (2010) 328 ITR 161 (Kerala)

On the above issue, it was decided that while lodging is a business, however, letting out of building to the bank on long-term lease could not be treated as business. Therefore, the rental income from bank has to be assessed as income from house property.

3. Would the phrase "used for purpose of business" in respect of discarded machine include use of such asset in the earlier years for claim of depreciation under section 32?

CIT v. Yamaha Motor India Pvt. Ltd. (2010) 328 ITR 297 (Delhi)

The issue under consideration in this case is whether depreciation is allowable on the written down value of the entire block, even though the block includes some machinery which has already been discarded and hence, cannot be put to use during the relevant previous year.

On the above issue, it was observed that the expression "used for the purposes of the business" in section 32 when used with respect to discarded machinery would mean the use in the business, not in the relevant financial year/previous year, but in the earlier financial years. The discarded machinery may not be actually used in the relevant previous year but depreciation can be claimed as long as it was used for the purposes of business in the earlier years provided the block continues to exist in the relevant previous year. So, the condition for claiming depreciation in respect of the discarded machine would be satisfied if it is used in the earlier previous years for the business.

4. Is the assessee entitled to depreciation on value of goodwill considering it as "other business or commercial rights of similar nature" within the meaning of an intangible asset?

B. Raveendran Pillai v. CIT (2011) 332 ITR 531 (Kerala)

Under section 32(1)(ii), depreciation is allowable on intangible assets, being know-how, patents, copyrights, trade marks, license, franchise, or any other business or commercial rights of similar nature.

In this case, a hospital was run in the same building, in the same town, in the same name for several years prior to purchase by the assessee. By transferring the right to use the name of the hospital itself, the previous owner had transferred the goodwill to the assessee and the benefit derived by the assessee was retention of continued trust of the patients, who were patients of the previous owners. When goodwill paid was for ensuring retention and continued business in the hospital, it was for acquiring a business and commercial right and it was comparable with trade mark, franchise, copyright etc., referred to in the first part of clause (ii) of section 32(1) and so, goodwill was covered by the above provision of the Act entitling the assessee for depreciation.

5. Can EPABX and mobile phones be treated as computers to be entitled to higher depreciation at 60%?

Federal Bank Ltd. v. ACIT (2011) 332 ITR 319 (Kerala)

On this issue, the High Court held that the rate of depreciation of 60% is available to computers and there is no ground to treat the communication equipment as computers. Hence, EPABX and mobile phones are not computers and therefore, are not entitled to higher depreciation at 60%.

6. Would expenditure incurred on feasibility study conducted for examining proposals for technological advancement relating to the existing business be classified as a revenue expenditure, where the project was abandoned without creating a new asset?

CIT v. Priya Village Roadshows Ltd. (2011) 332 ITR 594 (Delhi)

In this case, the assessee, engaged in the business of running cinemas, incurred expenditure towards architect fee for examining the technical viability of the proposal for takeover of cinema theatre for conversion into a multiplex/ four-screen cinema complexes. The project was, however, dropped due to lack of financial and technical viability. The issue under consideration is whether such expenses can be treated as revenue in nature, since no new asset has been created.

On this issue, the High Court observed that, in such cases, whether or not a new business/asset comes into existence would become a relevant factor. If there is no creation of a new asset, then the expenditure incurred would be of revenue nature. In this case, since the feasibility studies were conducted by the assessee for the existing business with a common administration and common fund and the studies were abandoned without creating a new asset, the expenses were of revenue nature.

7. Can expenditure incurred by a company on higher studies of the director's son abroad be claimed as business expenditure under section 37 on the contention that he was appointed as a trainee in the company under "apprentice training scheme", where there was no proof of existence of such scheme?

Echjay Forgings Ltd. v. ACIT (2010) 328 ITR 286 (Bom.)

On this issue, it was observed that there was no evidence on record to show that any other person at any point of time was appointed as trainee or sent abroad for higher education. Further, the appointment letter to the director's son, neither had any reference number nor was it backed by any previous application by him. The appointment letter referred to "apprentice training scheme" with the company in respect of which no details were produced. There was no evidence that he was recruited as trainee by some open competitive exam or regular selection process. Hence, there was no nexus between the education expenditure incurred abroad for the director's son and the business of the assessee company. Therefore, the aforesaid expenditure was not deductible.

8. Can the waiver of principal amount of loan taken for purchase of capital asset by the bank be treated as "benefit arising out of business" or "a remission of trading liability" for taxability as business income of the company?

Iskraemeco Regent Ltd. v. CIT (2011) 331 ITR 317 (Mad.)

The assessee company, engaged in the business of development, manufacturing and marketing of electro-mechanical and static energy meters, took a bank loan for purchase of capital assets. The grant of bank loan for purchase of a capital asset is a capital receipt and not a trading receipt. The provisions of section 41(1) are attracted only in case of remission of a trading liability. Since the loan was taken for purchase of capital assets, waiver of a portion of principal would not amount to remission of a trading liability to attract the provisions of section 41(1). Further, such waiver cannot be treated as a benefit arising out of business and consequently, section 28(iv) will not apply in respect of such loan transaction.

9. Would the special provisions for computing profits under section 44BB be applicable to a non-resident carrying on business of seismic data acquisition and processing under contract with Indian concerns?

Global Geophysical Services Ltd., In re (2011) 332 ITR 418 (AAR)

On an application made to the Authority of Advance Ruling by the non-resident on the above issue, the Authority observed that in an identical issue in Geofizyka Torun SP. Z.O.O. (2010) 320 ITR 0268 (AAR), it was observed that without seismic data acquisition and interpretation, it is impractical to carry out the activity of prospecting of mineral oil and gas which is a step in aid to its exploration. The seismic data (in processed form) is used to create highly accurate images of the earth's sub-surface which in turn are used by the exploration and production companies for locating potential oil and gas reserves based upon the geology observed.

Accordingly, in this case, the AAR ruled that the said activities and services of the applicant clearly fell within the description of section 44BB and the income derived by the applicant under the contracts with Indian concerns, namely ONGC and Cairn Energy, for seismic data acquisition and processing were to be computed under the provisions of section 44BB.

10. Can the Assessing Officer bring to tax the actual profits as per books of accounts, if the same is higher than 10% of receipts which are deemed to be the profits under section 44BBB in case of a foreign company engaged in turnkey projects?

DIT v. DSD Noell GmbH (2011) 333 ITR 304 (Delhi)

In the present case, the assessee is a German company providing engineering and technical services for various projects eligible for presumptive taxation scheme under section 44BBB. The assessee filed its return declaring a sum equal to 10% of the amount paid or payable to the assessee under the projects undertaken by it as deemed profits and gains chargeable to tax under the head "Profits and gains of business or profession" as per the provisions of section 44BBB. The Assessing Officer contended that on the basis of books of account maintained by the assessee, the profits could be more than 10% and therefore, the actual profits should be brought to tax by invoking sub-section (2) of section 44BBB.

On the above issue, the Delhi High Court held that if an assessee fulfills all the conditions mentioned in section 44BBB(1), the provisions of sections 28 to 44AA of the Act would not be applicable for computation of its business income, and a sum equal to 10% of the amount paid or payable to such foreign company would be deemed as its business income. Further, under section 44BBB(2), the assessee has the benefit of declaring before the Assessing Officer that the actual profits earned by it were less than 10% but the Revenue cannot take recourse of this sub-section to claim that the profits earned by the assessee were more than 10%.

11. Can exemption under section 54 be claimed in respect of more than one residential flat acquired by the assessee under a joint development agreement with a builder, wherein the property owned by the assessee was developed by the builder who constructed eight residential flats in the said property, four of which were given to the assessee?

CIT v. Smt. K. G. Rukminamma (2011) 331 ITR 211 (Kar.)

The assessee, being the owner of a property, entered into a joint development agreement with a builder to develop the property. Under the agreement, the builder constructed eight residential flats and handed over four residential flats to the assessee. The entire cost of construction and other expenses were borne by the builder.

The issue under consideration is whether capital gains exemption under section 54 can be claimed in respect of the four residential flats treating them as "a residential house". In the present case, the Revenue contended that the benefit of deduction under section 54 could be availed only in respect of one residential flat and in respect of the remaining three residential flats, the assessee was not entitled to deduction under section 54.

The Karnataka High Court, applying the decision in Anand Basappa (2009) 309 ITR 329 (Kar.) to the present case, held that all the four flats are situated in the same residential building and hence, will constitute "a residential house" for the purpose of section 54. Therefore, the assessee would be entitled to deduction under section 54 in respect of all four flats.

12. What can be the tests to determine "substantial part of business" of lending company for the purpose of application of exclusion provision under section 2(22)?

CIT v. Parle Plastics Ltd. (2011) 332 ITR 63 (Bom.)

Under section 2(22), dividend does not include, inter alia, any advance or loan made to a shareholder by a company in the ordinary course of its business, where the lending of money is a substantial part of the business of the company. The expression used in the exclusion provision of section 2(22) is "substantial part of the business". Sometimes a portion which contributes a substantial part of the turnover, though it contributes a relatively small portion of the profit, would be termed as a substantial part of the business. Similarly, a portion which is relatively small as compared to the total turnover, but generates a large portion, say more than 50% of the total profit of the company would also be a substantial part of its business. Percentage of turnover in relation to the whole as also the percentage of the profit in relation to the whole and sometimes even percentage of manpower used for a particular part of the business in relation to the total manpower or work force of the company would be required to be taken into consideration for determining the substantial part of business. The capital employed for a specific division of a company in comparison to total capital employed would also be relevant to determine whether the part of the business constitutes a substantial part.

In this case, 42% of the total assets of the lending company were deployed by it by way of loans and advances. Further, if the income earned by way of interest is excluded, the other business had resulted in a net loss. These factors were considered in concluding that lending of money was a substantial part of the business of the company. Since lending of money was a substantial part of the business of the lending company, the money given by it by way of advance or loan to the assessee could not be regarded as a dividend, as it had to be excluded from the definition of "dividend" by virtue of the specific exclusion in section 2(22).

- 13. Would the procurements of parts and assembling them to make windmill fall within the meaning of "manufacture" and "production" to be entitled for deduction under section 80-IB?

CIT v. Chiranjeevi Wind Energy Ltd. (2011) 333 ITR 192 (Mad.)

The Supreme Court, in India Cine Agencies v. CIT (2009) 308 ITR 98, laid down that the test to determine whether a particular activity amounts to "manufacture" or not is whether new and different goods emerge having distinctive name, use and character. Further, the Supreme Court, in CIT v. Sesa Goa Ltd. (2004) 271 ITR 331, observed that the word "production" or "produce" when used in comparison with the word "manufacture" means bringing into existence new goods by a process, which may or may not amount to manufacture. It also takes in all the by-products, intermediate products and residual products, which emerge in the course of manufacture of goods.

In this case, Madras High Court, applying the above rulings of the Apex Court, observed that the different parts procured by the assessee could not be treated as a windmill individually. Those different parts had distinctive names and only when assembled together, they got transformed into an ultimate product which was commercially known as a "windmill". Thus, such an activity carried on by the assessee would amount to "manufacture" as well as "production" of a thing or article to qualify for deduction under section 80-IB.

Note: The definition of manufacture has been incorporated in section 2(29BA) by the Finance (No. 2) Act, 2009 w.e.f. from 01.04.2009, and it means, inter alia, a change in a non-living physical object or article or thing resulting in transformation of the object or article or thing in to a new and distinct object or article or thing having a different name, character and use. Assembling of windmill at factory and putting them at site of customer apparently satisfies this definition of manufacture also.

- 14. Can an assessee not claiming deduction under section 80-IB in the initial years claim the said deduction for the remaining years during the period of eligibility, if the conditions are satisfied?

Praveen Soni v. CIT (2011) 333 ITR 324 (Delhi)

On the above issue, the Delhi High Court held that the provisions of section 80-IB nowhere stipulated a condition that the claim for deduction under this section had to be made from the first year of qualification of deduction failing which the claim will not be allowed in the remaining years of eligibility. Therefore, the deduction under section 80-IB should be allowed to the assessee for the remaining years up to the period for which his entitlement would accrue, provided the conditions mentioned under section 80-IB are fulfilled.

15. Does income derived from sale of export incentive qualify for deduction under section 80-IB?

CIT v. Jaswand Sons (2010) 328 ITR 442 (P&H)

On this issue, the High Court held that income derived from sale of export incentive cannot be said to be income “derived from” the industrial undertaking and therefore, such income is not eligible for deduction under section 80-IB.

16. Would grant of transport subsidy, interest subsidy and refund of excise duty qualify for deduction under section 80-IB?

CIT v. Meghalaya Steels Ltd. (2011) 332 ITR 91 (Gauhati)

The Supreme Court, in Liberty India v. CIT [2009] 317 ITR 218, observed that section 80-IB provides for deduction in respect of profits and gains “derived from the business” of the assessee and accordingly, the Parliament intended to cover sources of profits and gains not beyond the first degree. There should be a direct nexus between the generation of profits and gains and the source of profits and gains, the latter being directly relatable to the business of the assessee. Any other source, not falling within the first degree, can only be considered as ancillary to the business of the assessee.

In this case, the High Court observed that the transport and interest subsidies were revenue receipts which were granted after setting up of the new industries and after commencement of production. The transport subsidy would have the effect of reducing the inward and outward transport costs for the purposes of determining the cost of production as well as for sales. However, the subsidy had no direct nexus with the profits or gains derived by the assessee from its industrial activity and the benefit to the assessee was only ancillary to its industrial activity. The subsidies were not directly relatable to the industrial activity of the assessee, and hence they did not fall within the first degree contemplated by the Act. Therefore, the subsidies could not be taken into account for purposes of deduction under section 80-IB.

However, the payment of Central excise duty had a direct nexus with the manufacturing activity and similarly, the refund of the Central excise duty also had a direct nexus with the manufacturing activity, being a profit-linked incentive, since payment of the Central excise duty would not arise in the absence of any industrial activity. Therefore, the refund of excise duty had to be taken into account for purposes of section 80-IB.

Note: Similar ruling was pronounced by the Himachal Pradesh High Court in CIT v. Gheria Oil Gramudyog Workers Welfare Association (2011) 330 ITR 117, wherein it was held that interest subsidy received from the State Government cannot be treated as “profit derived from industrial undertaking” and hence was not eligible for deduction under section 80-IB.

17. Can interest under sections 234B and 234C be levied where a company is assessed on the basis of book profits under section 115JB?

Joint CIT v. Rolta India Ltd. (2011) 330 ITR 470 (SC)

On this issue, the Supreme Court observed that there is a specific provision in section 115JB(5) providing that all other provisions of the Income-tax Act, 1961 shall apply to every assessee, being a company, mentioned in that section. Section 115JB is a self-contained code pertaining to MAT, and by virtue of sub-section (5) thereof, the liability for payment of advance tax would be attracted. Therefore, if a company defaults in payment of advance tax in respect of tax payable under section 115JB, it would be liable to pay interest under sections 234B and 234C. Therefore, interest under sections 234B and 234C shall be payable on failure to pay advance tax in respect of tax payable under section 115JB.

Note – According to section 207, tax shall be payable in advance during any financial year, in accordance with the provisions of sections 208 to 219 (both inclusive), in respect of the total income of the assessee which would be chargeable to tax for the assessment year immediately following that financial year. Under section 115JB(1), where the tax payable on total income is less than 18.5% of “book profit” of a company, the “book profit” would be deemed to be the total income and tax would be payable at the rate of 18.5%. Since in such cases, the book profit is deemed to be the total income, therefore, as per the provisions of section 207, tax shall be payable in advance in respect of such book profit (which is deemed to be the total income) also.

18. Would the interest earned on surplus funds of a club deposited with institutional members satisfy the principle of mutuality to escape taxability?

Madras Gymkhana Club v. DCIT (2010) 328 ITR 348 (Mad.)

The assessee, club providing facilities like gym, library, etc, to its members earned interest from fixed deposits which it had made by investment of its surplus funds with its corporate members.

The High Court held that interest earned from investment of surplus funds in the form of fixed deposits with institutional members does not satisfy the principle of mutuality and hence cannot be claimed as exempt on this ground. The interest earned is, therefore, taxable.

19. Would the payments made by a company to BSNL/ MTNL for the services provided through interconnect / port / access / toll be treated as “fees for technical services” to attract the provisions of tax deduction at source under section 194J?

CIT v. Bharti Cellular Ltd. & Hutchison Essar Telecom Ltd. (2011) 330 ITR 239 (SC)

On this issue, the Delhi High Court had held that the services rendered in relation to interconnection, port access did not involve any human interface and, therefore, the services could not be regarded as "technical services" as contemplated under section 194J. The expression "technical service" would have reference to only technical service rendered by a human. It would not include any service provided by machines or robots. The Delhi High Court, therefore, concluded that interconnect charges/port access charges could not be regarded as fees for technical services, and hence, TDS provisions under section 194J were not attracted.

The Supreme Court observed that the problem which arises in these cases is that there is no proper evidence from the side of the Department to show how human intervention takes place, particularly, during the process when calls take place. During the traffic of calls from one place to another, whether there is any manual intervention is one of the points which requires to be examined. Similarly, the basis for allotment of "capacity" to a service provider and consequences if such "capacity" is exhausted and "additional capacity" is required on an urgent basis, needs to be examined to study whether at that stage, any human intervention is involved. These types of matters cannot be decided without any technical assistance.

The Apex Court was of the view that the Department should not proceed solely on the basis of contracts placed before its officers, but should examine the matter with the support of technical experts so that such matters could be disposed of expeditiously on the basis of factual findings. Accordingly, the Apex Court remitted the matter to the Assessing Officer, directing him to examine the same with the assistance of a technical expert from the side of the Department and to decide the matter within a period of four months.

- 20. Can difference between published price and minimum fixed commercial price be treated as additional special commission in the hands of the agents of an airline company to attract TDS provisions under section 194H?

CIT v. Qatar Airways (2011) 332 ITR 253 (Bom.)

In this case, the airline company sold tickets to the agents at a minimum fixed commercial price. The agents were permitted to sell the tickets at a higher price, however, up to the maximum of published price. Commission at the rate of 9% of published price was payable to the agents of the airline company, on which tax was deducted under section 194H. The issue under consideration is whether the difference between the published price and the minimum fixed commercial price amounts to additional special commission in the hands of the agents to attract the provisions of section 194H.

On this issue, the Bombay High Court observed that the difference between the published price and minimum fixed commercial price cannot be taken as additional special commission in the hands of the agents, since the published price was the maximum price and airline company had granted permission to the agents to sell the tickets at a price lower than the published price. In order to deduct tax at source, the exact income in the hands of the agents must necessarily be ascertainable by the airline company. However, the airline company would have no information about the exact rate at which the tickets were ultimately sold by its agents, since the agents had been given discretion to sell the tickets at any rate between the minimum fixed commercial price and the published price. It would be impracticable and unreasonable to expect the airline company to get a feedback from its numerous agents in respect of each ticket sold.

Thus, tax at source was not deductible on the difference between the actual sale price and the minimum fixed commercial price, even though the amount earned by the agent over and above minimum fixed commercial price would be taxable as income in his hands.

- 21. Can discount given on supply of SIM cards and recharge coupons by a telecom company to its distributors under a prepaid scheme be treated as commission to attract the TDS provisions under section 194H?

Vodafone Essar Cellular Ltd. v. ACIT (TDS) (2011) 332 ITR 255 (Kerala)

On this issue, the Kerala High Court observed that it was the SIM card which linked the mobile subscriber to the assessee's network. Therefore, supply of SIM card by the assessee-telecom company was only for the purpose of rendering continued services to the subscriber of the mobile phone. The position was the same so far as recharge coupons or e-topups were concerned which were only air time charges collected from the subscribers in advance under a prepaid scheme.

There was no sale of any goods involved as claimed by the assessee and the entire charges collected by the assessee from the distributors at the time of delivery of SIM cards or recharge coupons were only for rendering services to ultimate subscribers. The assessee was accountable to the subscribers for failure to render prompt services pursuant to connections given by the distributor. Therefore, the distributor only acted as a middleman on behalf of the assessee for procuring and retaining customers and therefore, the discount given to him was within the meaning of commission under section 194H on which tax was deductible.

- 22. Is disallowance under section 40(a)(i) for non deduction of tax at source attracted in respect of payment for purchase of software from a non-resident, by treating the same as royalty in case where the purchase is for subsequent resale in the Indian market?

CIT vs. Dynamic Vertical Software India P. Ltd. (2011) 332 ITR 0222 (Delhi)

In this case, the Delhi High Court held that since the assessee had purchased the software from Microsoft and subsequently sold the same in the Indian market, he had acted as a dealer and therefore the payment to the non-resident, Microsoft, can not be termed as royalty. Therefore, section 40(a)(i) would have no application in this case and the payment made to the non-resident cannot be disallowed under section 40(a)(i) on the ground that no tax was deducted at source.

23. Can penalty under section 271(1)(c) for concealment of income be imposed in a case where the assessee has raised a debatable issue?

CIT v. Indersons Leather P. Ltd. (2010) 328 ITR 167 (P&H)

The assessee company, after discontinuing its manufacturing business, leased out its shed along with fittings and disclosed the income as income from business, whereas the Revenue contended that the same be assessed as "Income from house property. The issue under consideration is whether penalty under section 271(1)(c) can be imposed in such a case.

On this issue, the High Court observed that, mere raising of a debatable issue would not amount to concealment of income or furnishing inaccurate particulars and therefore, penalty under section 271(1)(c) cannot be imposed.

24. Can the Tribunal exercise its power of rectification under section 254(2) to recall its order in entirety?

Lachman Dass Bhatia Hingwala (P) Ltd. v. ACIT (2011) 330 ITR 243 (Delhi)[FB]

On this issue, the Delhi High Court observed that the justification of an order passed by the Tribunal recalling its own order is required to be tested on the basis of the law laid down by the Apex Court in Honda Siel Power Products Ltd. v. CIT (2007) 295 ITR 466, dealing with the Tribunal's power under section 254(2) to recall its order where prejudice has resulted to a party due to an apparent omission, mistake or error committed by the Tribunal while passing the order. Such recalling of order for correcting an apparent mistake committed by the Tribunal has nothing to do with the doctrine or concept of inherent power of review. It is a well settled provision of law that the Tribunal has no inherent power to review its own judgment or order on merits or reappraise the correctness of its earlier decision on merits. However, the power to recall has to be distinguished from the power to review. While the Tribunal does not have the inherent power to review its order on merits, it can recall its order for the purpose of correcting a mistake apparent from the record.

The Apex Court, while dealing with the power of the Tribunal under section 254(2) in Honda Siel Power Products Ltd., observed that one of the important reasons for giving the power of rectification to the Tribunal is to see that no prejudice is caused to either of the parties appearing before it by its decision based on a mistake apparent from the record. When prejudice results from an order attributable to the Tribunal's mistake, error or omission, then it is the duty of the Tribunal to set it right. In that case, the Tribunal had not considered the material which was already on record while passing the judgment. The Apex Court took note of the fact that the Tribunal committed a mistake in not considering material which was already on record and the Tribunal acknowledged its mistake and accordingly, rectified its order.

The above decision of the Apex Court is an authority for the proposition that the Tribunal, in certain circumstances can recall its own order and section 254(2) does not totally prohibit so. In view of the law laid down by the Apex Court in that case, the decisions rendered by the High Courts in certain cases to the effect that the Tribunal under no circumstances can recall its order in entirety do not lay down the correct statement of law.

Applying the above-mentioned decision of the Apex Court to this case, the Delhi High Court observed that the Tribunal, while exercising the power of rectification under section 254(2), can recall its order in entirety if it is satisfied that prejudice has resulted to the party which is attributable to the Tribunal's mistake, error or omission and the error committed is apparent.

Note - In deciding whether the power under section 254(2) can be exercised to recall an order in entirety, it is necessary to understand the true principle laid down in the Apex Court decision. A decision should not be mechanically applied treating the same as a precedent without appreciating the underlying principle contained therein. In this case, the Apex Court decision was applied since prejudice had resulted to the party on account of the mistake of the Tribunal apparent from record.

25. Is wealth-tax leviable on the value of house under construction, where the construction was still incomplete on the relevant valuation date?

CIT v. Smt. Neena Jain (2011) 330 ITR 157 (P & H)

On this issue, the Revenue contended that the incomplete house of the assessee fell within the purview of assets in section 2(ea) of the Wealth-tax Act, 1957 and it was liable to wealth-tax. Consequently, the value of the plot and investment of assessee's share in construction of the residential house was added and tax was, accordingly assessed.

The High Court opined that the words "any building" could not be read in isolation and had to be harmoniously construed with the remaining portion of section 2(ea) i.e., whether the building was used for residential or commercial purposes or for the purpose of maintaining a guest house, because an incomplete building could not possibly either be used for residential or commercial purposes or for the purposes of maintaining a guest house. Therefore, the word "building" has to be interpreted to mean a completely built structure having a roof, dwelling place, walls, doors, windows, electric and sanitary fittings etc.

In this case, the assessee was constructing the building after obtaining sanction from the appropriate authorities. Explanation 1(b) under section 2(ea) defining "urban land" for levy of wealth-tax, specifically excludes from its scope, the land occupied by any building which has been constructed with the approval of the appropriate authority. Therefore, the incomplete building of the assessee neither fell within the meaning of a building nor within the purview of "urban land" under section 2(ea). Consequently, the incomplete building is not an asset chargeable to wealth-tax.

26. Can “moneys payable” in respect of a building sold by the assessee (which has to be reduced from the opening written down value of the block of assets for calculating depreciation) be construed as the fair market value of the asset instead of the actual sale price?

CIT v. Cable Corporation of India Ltd. (2011) 336 ITR 56 (Bom.)

On this issue, the Bombay High Court observed that the “moneys payable” to be reduced from the written down value of the block of assets as per section 43(6) is to be construed as per the meaning assigned to the same according to the Explanation below section 41(4) which states that the “moneys payable” in relation to the sale of a building, machinery, plant or furniture would be the price for which it is sold.

Therefore, the written down value of the asset falling within that block of assets at the beginning of the previous year has to be adjusted by the amount for which the asset is actually sold and not by its fair market value.

It may, however, be noted that, in case of scrap, the amount of scrap value (i.e. the fair market value) has to be reduced as per the provisions of section 43(6), to arrive at the written down value at the end of the year.

27. Can the Assessing Officer issue notice under section 154 to rectify a mistake apparent from record in the intimation under section 143(1), after issue of a valid notice under section 143(2)?

CIT v. Haryana State Handloom and Handicrafts Corporation Ltd. [2011] 336 ITR 699 (P&H)

On this issue, the Punjab and Haryana High Court referred to the Delhi High Court ruling in CIT v. Punjab National Bank (2001) 249 ITR 763, where it was held that rectification of an intimation cannot be made after issuance of notice under section 143(2) and during the pendency of proceedings under section 143(3). It was held that if any change was permissible to be effected, the same can be done in the assessment under section 143(3) and not by exercising the power under section 154 to rectify the intimation issued under section 143(1).

In the present case, the Punjab and Haryana High Court relying, inter alia, on the said decision held that the scope of proceedings under section 143(2) is wider than the power of rectification of mistake apparent from record under section 154. The notice under section 143(2) is issued to ensure that the assessee has not understated the income or has not computed excessive loss or underpaid the tax. It is only on consideration of the matter and on being satisfied that it is necessary or expedient to do so that the Assessing Officer issues the notice under section 143(2). Therefore, the the Assessing Officer has to proceed under section 143(3) and issue an assessment order. If issue of notice under section 154 is permitted to rectify the intimation issued under section 143(1), then it would lead to duplication of work and wastage of time.

Therefore, it was concluded that proceedings under section 154 for rectification of intimation under section 143(1) cannot be initiated after issuance of notice under section 143(2) by the Assessing Officer to the assessee.

28. Can the Assessing Officer reassess issues other than the issues in respect of which proceedings were initiated under section 147 when the original “reason to believe” on basis of which the notice was issued ceased to exist?

Ranbaxy Laboratories Ltd. v. CIT (2011) 336 ITR 136 (Delhi)

In the present case, the assessee company was engaged in the business of manufacture and trading of pharmaceutical products. The Assessing Officer accepted the returned income filed by the assessee but initiated reassessment proceedings under section 147 in respect of the addition to be made on account of club fees, gifts and presents and provision for leave encashment. It was observed that the Assessing Officer had reason to believe that income has escaped assessment due to claim and allowance of such expenses and accordingly, he issued notice under section 148. However, after sufficient enquiries were made during reassessment proceedings, the Assessing Officer came to the conclusion that no additions are required to be made on account of these expenses. Therefore, while completing the reassessment he did not make additions on account of these items but instead made additions on the basis of other issues which were not the original “reason to believe” for the issue of notice under section 148. The Assessing Officer made such additions on the basis of Explanation 3 to section 147 as per which the Assessing Officer may assess the income which has escaped assessment and which comes to his notice subsequently in the course of proceedings under section 147 even though the said issue did not find mention in the reasons recorded in the notice issued under section 148.

The issue under consideration is whether the Assessing Officer can make an assessment on the basis of an issue which came to his notice during the course of assessment, where the issues, which originally formed the basis of issue of notice under section 148, were dropped in its entirety.

As per section 147, the Assessing Officer may assess or reassess such income and also any other income chargeable to tax which has escaped assessment and which comes to his notice in the course of proceedings under this section. The Delhi High Court observed that the words “and also” used in section 147 are of wide amplitude.

The correct interpretation of the Parliament would be to regard the words 'and also' as being “conjunctive and cumulative with” and not “in alternative to” the first part of the sentence, namely, “the Assessing Officer may assess and reassess such income”. It is significant to note that Parliament has not used the word 'or' but has used the word 'and' together and in conjunction with the word 'also'. The words 'such income' in the first part of the sentence refer to the income chargeable to tax which has escaped assessment and in respect of which the Assessing Officer has formed a reason to believe for issue of the notice under section 148. Hence, the language used by the Parliament is indicative of the position that the assessment or reassessment must be in respect of the income, in respect of which the Assessing Officer has formed a reason to believe that the same has escaped assessment and also in respect of any other income which comes to his notice subsequently during the course of the proceedings as having escaped assessment. If the income, the escapement of which was the basis of the formation of the “reason to believe” is not assessed or reassessed, it would not be open to the Assessing Officer to independently assess only that income which comes to his notice subsequently in the course of the proceedings under the section as having escaped assessment. If he intends to do so, a fresh notice under section 148 would be necessary.

29. Would the words “shall be issued” used in section 149 mean ‘mere signing of notice by the Assessing Officer’ or ‘handing over of the said notice in the hands of the proper officer for serving it to the assessee’ to constitute a valid notice issued within the prescribed time limit?

Kanubhai M. Patel (HUF) v. Hiren Bhatt or his successors to Office (2011) 334 ITR 0025 (Guj.)

In the present case, the assessee filed a return of income for the assessment year 2003-04. The assessee did not receive any notice under section 143(2). On 8th April, 2010, the assessee received a notice under section 148 dated 31st March, 2010 for the assessment of income relating to assessment year 2003-04 under section 147. The assessee, on inquiry from the post office, found out that the department had sent the covers for issuing notice to the speed post centre (for booking) only on 7th April, 2010 and not on 31st March, 2010 and the Revenue also did not challenge this finding of the assessee.

The assessee, therefore, challenged the legality and validity of the notices dated 31st March, 2010 issued by the department under section 148 as being time barred contending that the impugned notices have been issued beyond the time limit prescribed under the provisions of section 149 i.e. after a period of six years from the end of the relevant assessment year. The assessee contended that the date of issue of the notices under section 148 would be the date on which the same have been dispatched by registered post i.e. 7th April, 2010 and not the date of signing of the notice by the Assessing Officer i.e. 31st March, 2010.

The Gujarat High Court observed that the core issue which arises for consideration is the date when the notice under section 148 can be said to have been issued. For this purpose, it is necessary to examine the true meaning of the phrase ‘shall be issued’ as employed in section 149(1) according to which no notice under section 148 ‘shall be issued’ for the relevant assessment year, if the specified time period (i.e. 4 years/6 years, as the case may be) has elapsed from the end of the relevant assessment year.

The Gujarat High Court observed that according to Black’s Law Dictionary, the term ‘issue’ when used with reference to writs, process, and the like, would mean as importing delivery to the proper person, or to the proper officer for service etc. Therefore, any notice may be considered to be issued if made out and placed in the hands of a person authorised to serve it, and with a bona fide intent to have it served. The expression 'shall be issued' in section 149 would, therefore, have to be read in the above mentioned context.

In the present case, the notice has been signed on 31st March, 2010, whereas the same were sent to the speed post centre for booking only on 7th April, 2010. From the above definition of the word "issue", it is apparent that mere signing of notices on 31st March, 2010 cannot tantamount to issuance of notice as contemplated under section 149. The date of issue would be the date on which the same were handed over for service to the proper officer, which, in the facts of the present case, would be the date on which the said notices were actually handed over to the post office for the purpose of effecting service on the assessee.

Hence, the date of issue of the said notice would be 7th April, 2010 and not 31st March, 2010. Therefore, the aforesaid notice under section 148 in relation to the assessment year 2003-04, having been issued on 7th April, 2010, is beyond the period of six years from the end of the relevant assessment year and clearly barred by limitation.

- 30. Can the Commissioner initiate revision proceedings under section 263 on the ground that the Assessing Officer's order not initiating penal proceedings was erroneous and prejudicial to the interest of the Revenue, in a case where non-initiation of penal proceedings was a pre-condition for surrender of income by the assessee?

CIT v. Subhash Kumar Jain [2011] 335 ITR 364 (P&H)

In the present case, an addition of ₹ 9,91,090 was made in the assessment of the assessee under section 143(3) on account of agricultural income, since the assessee failed to explain the source of agricultural income as declared by him in the return of income. The said addition was made on the basis of the report submitted by the Inspector pointing out the defects in the documents furnished by the assessee. As a result, the assessee made an offer to surrender ₹ 9,91,090 subject to a condition that no penal action under section 271(1)(c) would be initiated. The Assessing Officer accepted the same as the department did not have any documentary evidence against the assessee and the assessment was made only on the basis of the report by the Inspector. Accordingly, the assessment was framed by the Assessing Officer without initiating the penalty proceedings under section 271(1)(c). The Commissioner of Income-tax, exercising his power under section 263, directed the Assessing Officer to frame a fresh assessment order after taking into account the facts attracting the penal action under section 271(1)(c), considering the original order erroneous and prejudicial to the interest of the Revenue.

The issue under consideration in this case is whether, when the Assessing Officer, while passing the assessment order under section 143(3), had given effect to the office note that the surrender of the agricultural income which was made by the assessee would not be subject to penal action under section 271(1)(c) and accordingly not levied penalty, can the Commissioner of Income-tax, in exercise of his power under section 263, hold the order of the Assessing Officer to be erroneous and prejudicial to the interest of the Revenue.

On this issue, the Punjab and Haryana High Court observed that, on perusal of the office note issued by the Assessing Officer, it was clear that the assessee had made surrender of income with a clear condition that no penal action under section 271(1)(c) would be initiated. The office note further depicts that the offer of the assessee was accepted by the Department. Once that was so, the Commissioner cannot take a different view and levy penalty. The High Court relied on the decision of the Bombay High Court in Jivatlal Purtapshi v. CIT (1967) 65 ITR 261, where it was observed that an order based on an agreement cannot give rise to grievances and the same cannot be agitated.

31. Can winnings of prize money on unsold lottery tickets held by the distributor of lottery tickets be assessed as business income and be subject to normal rates of tax instead of the rates prescribed under section 115BB?

CIT v. Manjoo and Co. (2011) 335 ITR 527 (Kerala)

On the above issue, the Kerala High Court observed that winnings from lottery is included in the definition of income by virtue of section 2(24)(ix). Further, in practice, all prizes from unsold tickets of the lotteries shall be the property of the organising agent. Similarly, all unclaimed prizes shall also be the property of the organising agent and shall be refunded to the organising agent.

The High Court contended that the receipt of winnings from lottery by the distributor was not on account of any physical or intellectual effort made by him and therefore cannot be said to be "income earned" by him in business. The said view was taken on the basis that the unsold lottery tickets cease to be stock-in-trade of the distributor because, after the draw, those tickets are unsaleable and have no value except waste paper value and the distributor will get nothing on sale of the same except any prize winning ticket if held by him, which, if produced will entitle him for the prize money. Hence, the receipt of the prize money is not in his capacity as a lottery distributor but as a holder of the lottery ticket which won the prize. The Lottery Department also does not treat it as business income received by the distributor but instead treats it as prize money paid on which tax is deducted at source.

Further, winnings from lotteries are assessable under the special provisions of section 115BB, irrespective of the head under which such income falls. Therefore, even if the argument of the assessee is accepted and the winnings from lottery is taken to be received by him in the course of his business and as such assessable as business income, the specific provision contained in section 115BB, namely, the special rate of tax i.e. 30% would apply.

Therefore, the High Court held that the rate of 30% prescribed under section 115BB is applicable in respect of winnings from lottery received by the distributor.

- 32. Would non-resident match referees and umpires in the games played in India fall within the meaning of sportsmen to attract taxability under the provisions of section 115BBA, and consequently attract the TDS provisions under section 194E in the hands of the payer?

Indcom v. Commissioner of Income-tax (TDS) (2011) 335 ITR 485 (Calcutta)

On this issue, the Calcutta High Court observed that, in order to attract the provisions of the section 194E, the person should be a non-resident sportsperson or non-resident sports association or institution whose income is taxable as per the provisions of section 115BBA.

The umpires and the match referees can be described as professionals or technical persons who render professional or technical services, but they cannot be said to be either non-resident sportsmen (including an athlete) or non-resident sports association or institution so as to attract the provisions of section 115BBA and consequently, the provisions of tax deduction at source under section 194E are also not attracted in this case. Though for the purpose of section 194J, match referees and umpires are considered as professionals, the tax deduction provisions thereunder are attracted only in case where the deductee is a resident individual, which is not so in the present case.

Therefore, although the payments made to non-resident umpires and the match referees are "income" which has accrued and arisen in India, the same are not taxable under the provisions of section 115BBA and thus, the assessee is not liable to deduct tax under section 194E.

Note - It may be noted that since income has accrued and arisen in India to the non-resident umpires and match referees, the TDS provisions under section 195 would be attracted and tax would be deductible at the rates in force.